As a Highly Dangerous Mana user yourself, I'm sure you understand that...

...if others learn of this...

...it will be just as it was for you 200 years ago. He will face isolation from society and solitude, or even...

...the death penalty.

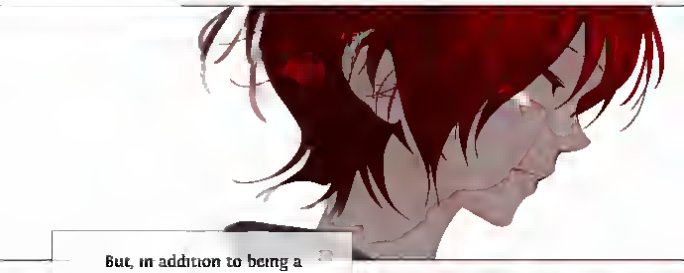
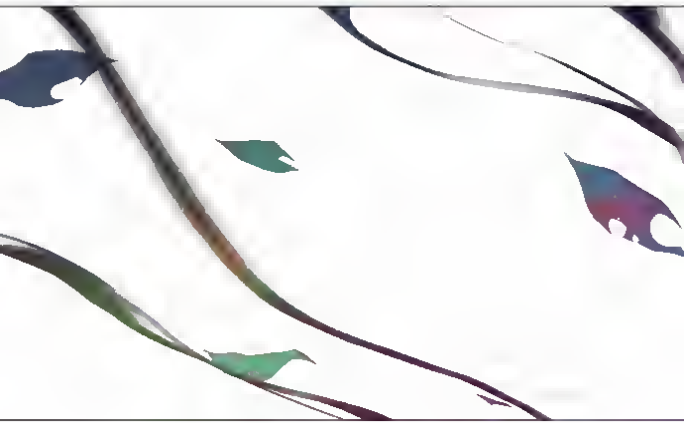
"Syniez"

An Innate Mana that can bring to life thoughts inside the head, or some other determined place

Syniez can turn anything into reality, with the exception of the Creator's own unique powers Time, Life, Space-Time Travel*, and Mana
Syniez
They say that Syniez first manifested in a young girl, Melly, hundreds of years ago.
*Space-Time Travel: Moving to or meddling with the human world, the world that is 0.8 seconds behind that of the Gods
Ran's Innate Mana, which turns dreams into reality, has these same principles



But, in addition to being a Symez, able to merge dream and reality, he is also a Lucid Dreamer, able to direct the dream world

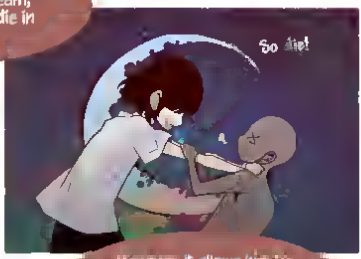


Thus, he is a Highly Dangerous Mana User, exceeding the nine levels of average Mana.

Although Hyacen looks like a Lucid Dreamer or a Syniez, his innate Mana is different.

For example, if he made a "magic free" environment in his dreamand invited someone, that person would find themselves unable to use magic.

Also, if Hyacen physically killed a person in his dream, that person would also die in the real world.



Because it allows him to commit serious crimes, it must be classified as Highly Dangerous Mana.

To put it simply, he may be the king of the dream world and set all the laws and rules, but he cannot become a Creator himself.

That's your son's Innate Mana, "A Dream for Two..."
Also known as "Nine."
It's not yet mature, so it's highly unlikely that he knows about this ability.
It's also possible that the invitation to his dream can be declined, depending on who is invited. Regardless, the Mana is dangerous.

The death sentence, enforced isolation, or maybe having no sentence at all – each are equally likely.

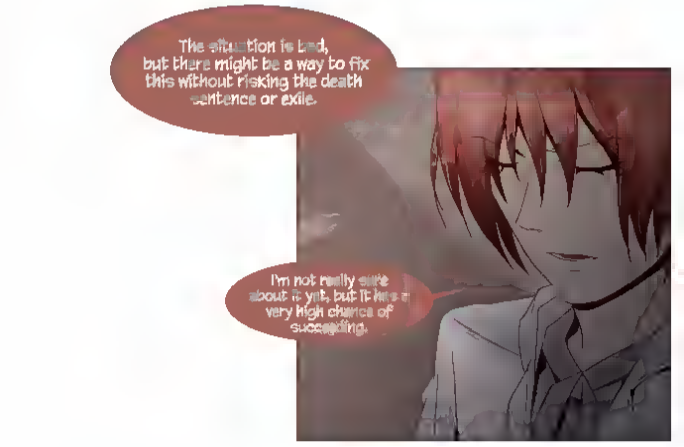
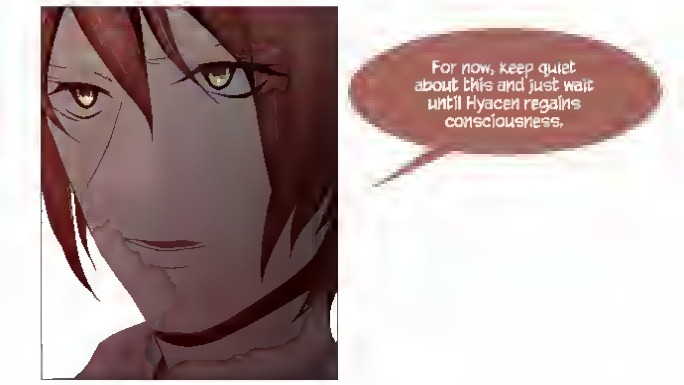
Even a 1% chance is too risky. You know that.
Listen to me.



The situation is bad, but there might be a way to fix this without risking the death sentence or exile.
I'm not really sure about it yet, but it has a very high chance of succeeding.



For now, keep quiet about this and just wait until Hyacen regains consciousness.

I can't say who, but I know someone who could help us.

These documents have already been checked, so you can go on without examining them.
Also, Chief Ten of Wenaritana said that he would hand you his letter of apology in person by next week.

Slam!
Excuse me, Ma'am.
I have an urgent message for the president of the Organization, Yeoha-dan leader inside?
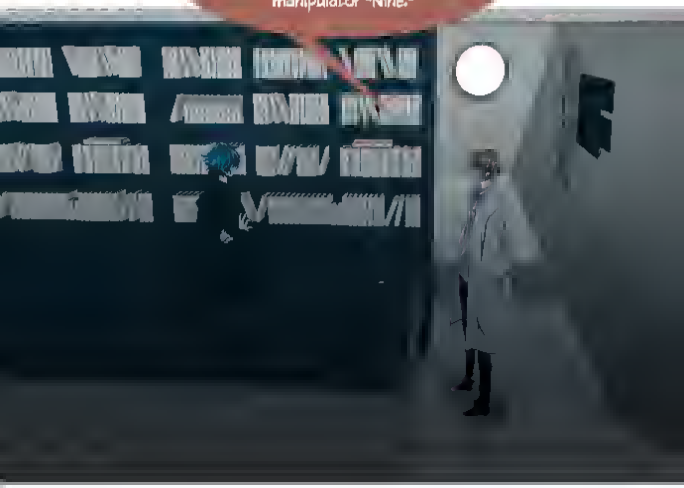
In any case, no matter how urgent the message, you can't just barge in there—
It's fine. Let him in.
Oh good grief. How lucky.

Urgent message from the president? I didn't know you could joke like that.
Oh shut up. It really is urgent, so I'll get straight to the point.

There is a child who might be sentenced to death because of the laws on Highly Dangerous Mana. I need your help.
What is it about? Trouble seems to follow wherever you go.
This time, it's not me. It's you.

The child in question is a dream maker "Nine."

His innate Mana is the same as your shadow manipulator "Nine."



Please, take that child's side during the trial.

It wouldn't be fair if he gets executed when you get to live with the same innate Mana.

If you explain, I'm sure you could convince the rest of the Tessera too.

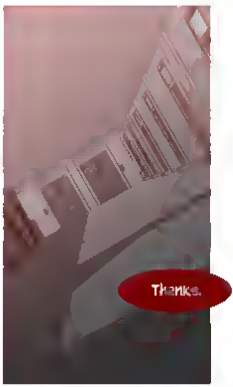
Looks like you'll owe me one, then.

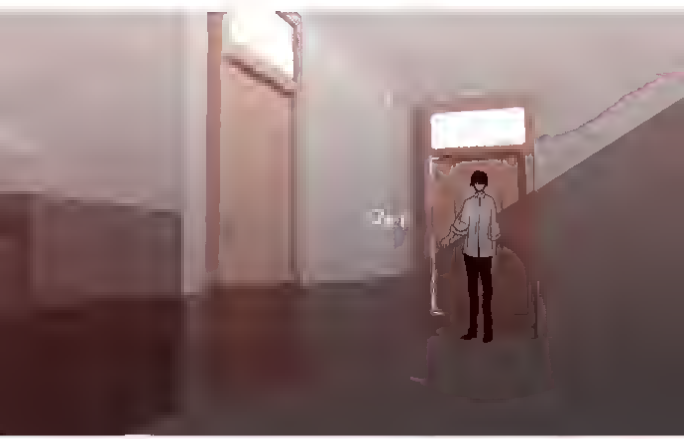
Look! The Tessera said that this shouldn't even need a trial and gave their okay!
Did you spend the whole night talkin' to those people?
Of course.

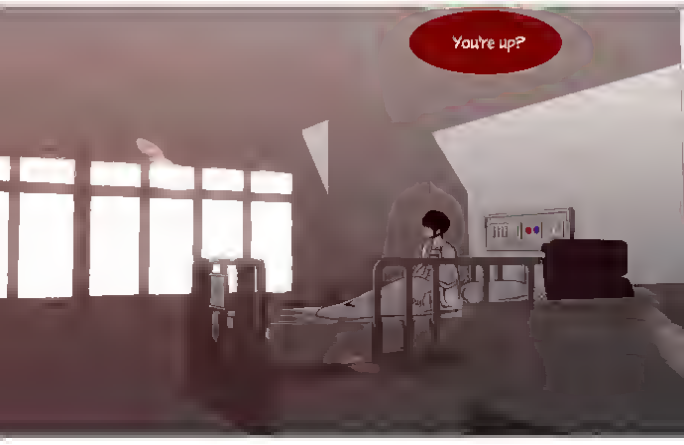
I asked you to keep it secret because I thought that Kashin or Nori might not like it.
Come on PsyHee, don't act all smart.
Now you're acting more like yourself.

It's about time for Hya to wake up, so go check on him.
I'll go get Kaskin and Nori.



Thanks.





You're up?

H-How are you feeling?

So it wasn't...
...a dream.
What are you wearing in this weather? You stinky old man.
Did you sleep in those?
Huh?

I'm not going to keep playing hide and seek with you, so start taking care of yourself.
If it's cold, wear proper clothes. Get some sleep, and put on a little weight. You're all bones.

I'm going to do what Ajussi said.
I'm going to forget about you and move on with my life.

Once my memories are gone, I won't be a burden to you anymore.
It's best for the both of us.

Farewell.
